

Together is Better! Is a Group Health Visit Right for You?

What is a group health visit?

- CHP offers group health visits for patients who share certain chronic health conditions and who may benefit from a supportive group setting. Group care is also sometimes helpful for patients receiving follow-up care for certain ailments or conditions.
- A CHP clinician will lead your group visit, sometimes with other wellness professionals such as a health educator, yoga instructor, or nutritionist.
- Group health visits are held in a private healthcare setting or online.

Are group care visits covered by insurance?

- Group health care visits are typically covered by insurance. Co-pays/deductibles may apply; sliding fees available for eligible patients.
- Check with your insurance plan to see how your coverage applies to group visits, especially behavioral health and group therapy.

Are there limits on the number of group visits I can have?

- Although CHP does not have a limit on group care visits, check with your insurer about any limits, including for behavioral health care and group therapy.

Is there assistance available if I can't afford to pay?

- CHP offers financial assistance to help patients access care, including group visits.
- CHP's Certified Patient Navigators can assist patients with:
 - Enrolling in primary or secondary insurance, which usually covers group visits (co-pays and deductibles may apply). Even if you have private insurance, you may qualify for a secondary plan to help pay for services
 - CHP's Sliding Fee Scale program is available to income-qualifying patients. Navigators can provide more information and help with the application
 - Financial hardship programs
